LSU LAW IS ONE OF THE WORLD’S GREAT LAW SCHOOLS.

We are also one of the best values in legal education in the country! The Law Center’s significance stems from several key attributes: our program and our students’ outcomes, our faculty and staff, our amazing students, and the fantastic community and university at LSU.

LSU Law students learn about the world’s two primary legal systems—the civil law and the common law. Because our home state, Louisiana, blends these two legal methodologies, LSU Law prepares you to tackle legal issues not only here, but in the common law systems in place throughout most of the United States, and in the civil law systems in place throughout most of the world. After building a foundation in both systems and methodologies during your first year of studies, you then choose your focus for continued study, preparation for legal practice, and licensing in one or both systems and across a wide array of practice areas. This flexibility provides LSU Law students with the option to obtain a Diploma in Comparative Law in addition to the Juris Doctor (JD), while also exploring the subject areas of their choice.

As an LSU Law student, you can also earn either a Certificate in Energy Law and Policy or a Certificate in Estate Planning & Taxation—both dynamic, multidisciplinary certificates for those interested in those fields of study and practice. We also offer multiple concurrent degree programs with LSU, sometimes called “joint degrees,” allowing you to earn a master’s degree in one of multiple areas while also in law school, shortening the time it would otherwise take to earn the two degrees separately.

Beyond the “traditional” classroom, learning at LSU Law occurs in simulation courses, advocacy and moot court programs, clinics, and field placements. In our clinical program, you’ll work on real legal matters with real clients in clinics focused on a variety of legal areas, including juvenile defense, prosecution, parole assistance and re-entry, and civil mediation. In yet another clinic you could work on wrongful conviction cases with attorneys from Innocence Project New Orleans. In our field placement program, you will earn academic credits while participating in hands-on work with judges, lawyers, government officials, and nonprofits. Our moot court and advocacy programs are broad, far-reaching, and strong: LSU Athletics isn’t unique on campus in fielding national championship teams!

Our record of academic success is strong. We consistently achieve the highest first-time bar pass rate in Louisiana, we have outstanding employment success, and we have been rated a best value law school for the combination of these post-graduate student outcomes, our tuition, cost of living, and indebtedness upon graduation.

The LSU Law faculty and staff are accomplished, dedicated, respected, and recognized, and we never forget that the Law Center’s core mission is education. Similarly, LSU Law alumni are here to support you and provide you with a network of professional resources throughout the world. They are governors, as well as leaders in the judiciary, government, law firms, business, and the nonprofit sectors.

Student life at LSU Law is dynamic, engaging, and exciting. Our many student organizations let you find your passion and hone your leadership skills. And our students are devoted to serving others, primarily through our Public Interest Law Society. The environment at LSU is stimulating, inclusive, and welcoming. Our law community embraces the rich traditions and culture of Louisiana. That means, in part, we are hard-working, resilient, and compassionate folks who enjoy great food, art, music, sports, and the outdoors. We celebrate diversity, community, and one another’s company.

I invite you to visit our beautiful LSU campus—home to one of the world’s best public research universities and law schools. It would be my pleasure to meet you and share more about the traditions and excellence of this great law school.

Sincerely,

Lee Ann Wheelis Lockridge
Interim Dean and Professor of Law
Okay. We know what you’re here for: a top-notch education in law. Maybe you’d like to add some letters to your title or learn the ability to always negotiate on your terms. Maybe you want to start your day with “I object!” And being addressed as “Your Honor” doesn’t sound too shabby.

Whatever is right for you, the road there may look intimidating. But consider the other side of the argument: joining a community of scholars with different opinions and perspectives from all walks of life gives you a versatile education in law—one that you won’t get simply sitting inside a classroom. The one thing we all agree on is our passion for law. And we make it so much more exciting than shoving your nose in a book and parroting information.

Here, faculty learn from students every bit as much as students learn from faculty. Although we may have different titles, we’re all on the same level—a playing field that opens you up to new viewpoints while helping you argue against different outlooks. We see law as a living, breathing thing that we live and breathe every day.

Learn together with us, and you can speak for those without a voice. Bring order to what’s fallen out of line. Assure that what stands, stands for what is right.

The LSU Law Library is one of the largest academic law libraries in the United States, holding more than 850,000 volume equivalents and 109,000 volumes of court records. In addition to standard Anglo-American legal materials, the library has substantial collections of foreign, international, and comparative law. It is also a selective depository for U.S. government documents and Louisiana documents.
OUR PRACTICE SETS THE PRECEDENT.

The LSU Paul M. Hebert Law Center is one of the most comprehensive and challenging law schools in the country. Steeped in tradition and committed to excellence, this is more than a conventional legal education. This is a community of scholars who challenge you to be better through every case, objection, higher court, and bottom line.

We create the leaders of tomorrow, setting the precedent for all others to measure success against, one graduate after another.

One of the things that separates us from every other law school in the country is our comparative law degree. This program gives students like you the opportunity to study and compare two legal practices at once. The offering is rooted in our melting pot of history—one that we build upon to create more versatile and knowledgeable law experts.

The Mississippi River brought an interstate trade system to Louisiana, connecting North America with the oceans of the world. This attracted commerce and cultures from French and Spanish settlers to Anglo-Saxon barristers, thus creating the need for those practicing law to be fluent in both of the world’s major law traditions: common and civil.

This unique combination is the only one of its kind in the United States. Your LSU Law School diploma isn’t just a degree, it’s a passport. Because of our unique roots, we prepare graduates to understand both systems. Study law here at LSU and you’ll be prepared to practice in all 50 states and the world over, wherever life takes you.

FRAME UP YOUR FUTURE

LET’S PUT YOUR ANALYTICAL AND COMMUNICATION SKILLS TO WORK SO YOU CAN WORK TOWARD THE CAREER YOU’VE HAD YOUR EYE ON — EVEN IF YOU’VE SET YOUR SIGHTS ACROSS THE WORLD.

GRADUATE DIPLOMA IN COMPARATIVE LAW (DCL)

More than 60 percent of the world practices civil law. Here, every student is given the basics of this type of law in their first year. If you wish to earn your degree in civil law on top of your Juris Doctor, this is the path for you. The constant comparison of both civil law and common law allows you to bring more to each one individually and grants you versatility when it’s time for the job search.

GRADUATE CERTIFICATE IN ENERGY LAW AND POLICY

LSU started the John P. Laborde Energy Law Center to prepare students for the evolving climate of energy law. Legal and regulatory issues surrounding the energy industry are becoming increasingly complex and specialized, surging the demand for energy law experts. Power up to be the best in the business.

Once you complete your first year of required courses and form a solid foundation, you’ll then choose the courses that will build your career. Here are just some of our course offerings:

- Mineral Rights
- Matrimonial Regimes
- Gaming Law
- Theater Law
- Land Use Planning
- Local Government Law
- Climate Change Law
- Employment Discrimination
- Natural Resources Law
- Animal Law
- Intellectual Property
- White Collar Criminal Law
- International Human Rights
- Sports Law
- Biotechnology
- Cybersecurity and Counterterrorism
- Elder Law
- Entertainment Law
- Bioethics
- Not-for-Profit Organizations
- Foreign Affairs Law
- Legal Negotiations
- Advanced Trial and Evidence
WHY SETTLE FOR ONE LEG UP ON THE COMPETITION WHEN YOU COULD GET TWO?

Dual-degree programs allow law students to earn a law degree in tandem with a master’s degree of their choosing. The benefit of doing both? Eliminating overlapping coursework and allowing credit in both programs, resulting in shortened time and lower cost. Because, after all, there’s no time to waste when it comes to getting exactly what you want.

JURIS DOCTOR/MASTER OF BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION
The JD/MBA dual degree program allows students to earn both a Juris Doctor from LSU Law and a Master of Business Administration from the E. J. Ourso College of Business at LSU. Students gain insight into business and legal practices, and they develop a background for careers in law and/or business.

JURIS DOCTOR/MASTER OF SCIENCE IN FINANCE
The JD/MS program allows students to obtain both a Juris Doctor from LSU Law and a Master of Science in Finance from the E. J. Ourso College of Business. The JD/MS offers students an education grounded in law and finance, which appeals to students who wish to practice in business or corporate law after graduation.

JURIS DOCTOR/MASTER OF PUBLIC ADMINISTRATION
The JD/MPA is designed for students who intend to earn both a Juris Doctor and a Master of Public Administration concurrently. The program prepares students for careers in federal, state or local government and in nonprofit organizations. The dual degree also appeals to students who plan to specialize in administrative areas in which a legal background is helpful.

JURIS DOCTOR/MASTER OF MASS COMMUNICATION
LSU Law and the Manship School of Mass Communication are among a handful of schools in the U.S. that offer a dual degree in law and a Master of Mass Communication. The dual degree is designed to appeal both to those students who wish to specialize in First Amendment and communications law as practicing lawyers, and to those who wish to work as professionals in mass communication in fields related to law.

JURIS DOCTOR/MASTER OF SOCIAL WORK
LSU Law and the LSU School of Social Work offer a Juris Doctor and a Master of Social Work which can be earned in as little as four years through concurrent enrollment. The degree appeals to students who wish to advocate for children, families, women, and the elderly and who desire a better understanding of the legal system surrounding social issues.
Graduates of the LSU Law Center are dedicated to their fellow Tigers, knowing that the students who stand in our classrooms will someday stand in places of power, making decisions that will affect so many. When you leave our halls, you’ll be prepared to lead in any direction. That’s why our curriculum is centered around professional skills training—the core of any comprehensive law education.

Externships are the perfect way to get your foot in the doorway to the career of your choice. Here in Baton Rouge, the capital city, students have an excellent advantage of being placed within state and local government agencies, courts, and public interest organizations. There’s opportunity close by in New Orleans, and if you want to explore outside of Louisiana, your opportunity awaits, anywhere from Florida to California. Work your way to the top and you can even make waves in Washington, D.C.

LSU LAW EXTERNSHIPS INCLUDE:
- Louisiana Supreme Court and Louisiana Appellate Courts
- Louisiana Governor’s Office, Executive Counsel
- Louisiana Department of Justice
- District and Federal Public Defender’s Office
- Federal Courts
- Federal Circuit Court
- District Court
- Judicial Circuit Courts in Florida, Texas, and Alabama
- California Attorney General’s Office
SHERA GRANT and SHANTA OWENS graduated from LSU Law in 2002 and now hold the distinction of being the first and only set of identical twins to serve simultaneously as state court judges in Jefferson County, Alabama.

“We were very blessed to have gone to LSU Law. We had some great experiences, and we really learned to reason and think like lawyers in the courtroom at LSU Law. It also definitely prepared us for the stress of being a lawyer.”

- JUDGE SHERA GRANT

“LSU Law was a wonderful school that really prepared us for the rigors of the legal profession, and there wasn’t any doubt that we would pass the bar exam on the first try.”

- JUDGE SHANTA OWENS
LEARN THE LAW IN THE CLASSROOM.
BECOME A LAWYER IN THE COURTROOM.

LSU Law doesn’t waste a second making students real-world ready. The LSU Law Clinics place students in the courtroom trying actual cases for real-life clients. They offer second- and third-year students the opportunity to practice law and represent clients in the Baton Rouge and surrounding communities, or act as mediators in civil or family cases. Third-year students are legally certified to practice law under close faculty supervision, while second-year students assist faculty in representing actual clients.

Clinic offerings include:

→ Wrongful Conviction
→ Juvenile Defense
→ Civil and Family Mediation
→ Parole and Re-entry
→ Advocacy for Victims of Sexual Assault
→ Prosecution
→ Title Clearing and Succession

Law clinics make for a seamless transition from classroom to courtroom, assuring our students are raising the bar the second they graduate.
LSU Law holds six internal trial competitions during the year that give students the opportunity to develop and demonstrate advocacy skills before panels of attorneys and judges.
GET THE CHANCE TO EXPERIENCE FIRSTHAND INTERNATIONAL LAW.

As an LSU Law student, you’ll have the unique opportunity to study abroad for a six-week program in Lyon, France.

Sharpen your skills by immersing yourself in a different judicial system. Earn credit hours in comparative and international law with students and faculty who open you up to new views, literally. The Université Jean Moulin Lyon 3 campus stretches throughout the city, and the main law school building sits on the banks of the Rhone River, located in Lyon’s 8th arrondissement.

The LSU Summer in France program is the second-largest program sponsored by an American law school abroad, and is located in the second-largest city in France. But your experience? First-class.

If France isn’t far enough, LSU Law also offers student exchange programs with universities in Belgium and Peru. Get an internship with law firms, courts, and government bodies in Argentina and Costa Rica.

Get an all-encompassing view of the legal world, baguette and macaron in hand. Let’s get that passport stamped so you can fly off to France and wherever else your law degree will take you from there.
GET A LAW EDUCATION THAT IS A WORLD APART
HERE, OUR PROFESSORS PRACTICE WHAT THEY TEACH. At LSU Law, you’re taught by the professionals themselves. Our faculty is well-known for their scholarship, from the professors who have written principal Louisiana treatises in their areas of expertise, to those providing service to the legal community at the state and federal government level. Louisiana courts often cite the writings of our faculty who have become successful lawyers and judges.

When they’re not making big moves in their own professional careers, faculty are helping students build theirs, always meeting with students and study groups, conducting review sessions, and keeping their offices open way past office hours. In time, they’ll become the voices of reason in your head, challenging you through your entire legal career.

A FACULTY COMMITTED TO MORE THAN CLASS
graduates make up LSU Law’s alumni network in 50 states and 34 countries.

The LSU family is a big and bold one. Since 1906, the Law Center has graduated over 10,000 students, made up of successful attorneys, legislators, congressmen, business leaders, and distinguished members of the judiciary. The best part of an LSU Law degree? You’re qualified to practice anywhere in the country, from coast to coast. And if you earn your degree in Comparative Law, the coast is just a jumping off point.

So go ahead, become a chief justice in New Orleans. Become a litigator in Los Angeles. Or make partner in Peru. There’s no stopping a grad with an LSU Law degree.

With fully stacked resumes, our grads have a lot to pass down to the next class. They’re an active part of our community, always willing to give advice and encouragement to our students. From the West Coast to the West Alps, you’ll find our grads just about anywhere. And you’re next in line to take charge.

Each year, LSU Law welcomes more than 180 employers from across the country to interview students and alumni for possible employment.
One week every year, LSU Law alumni return to the law center to teach students during Apprenticeship Week. Second- and third-year students benefit from this week-long series of mini-courses taught by master judges and lawyers. Classes are purposefully small to give more personal attention to students and focus on practical, hands-on topics.

These courses grant students the knowledge that they wouldn’t normally get before their first jobs. With this program, they learn the tricks of the trade before they’ve even begun their careers, giving LSU grads added advantages so they enter the workforce ready to make an impact.

SOME COURSES INCLUDE:

- Lawyering in the Legislative Process
- Forensic Science in the Law
- Building Your Business and Your Brand
- What Makes Judges Read and Hear What Lawyers Say
- Strategies for Conflict Resolution

“This place challenges you to be better because you have to be as sharp as the people around you. And that’s something I’ve taken with me after graduation.”

- Andrew Hairston ’16
  Civil Rights Fellow

“The LSU Law Clinic offers students an opportunity to experience what other law school courses cannot provide. The facts are not a pattern on a law school exam; they’re a real person’s story.”

- Jana Robinson ’16
  Associate Attorney

“I thought I was going to come in, mind my own business, and get my degree. But the faculty, staff, and my classmates have led me to be more active, more involved, and be a leader. This place sticks with you.”

- Robert Glueck ’17
  Attorney

“LSU produces great lawyers that can go toe-to-toe with lawyers from any part of the country and from any school.”

- John Wheadon deGravelles ’74
  United States Federal Judge

From clerking for a United State Supreme Court Justice in D.C. to making partner at a law firm in California, our presence is everywhere. But we really bring it home when it comes to our home state. Six justices of the Louisiana Supreme Court hold LSU Law degrees. We’re proud to have taught John Bel Edwards, the current governor. And law clerks hang our diplomas in offices from Shreveport to New Orleans. We’re changing the world one grad at a time, and that includes taking care of our own in our home state.
LSU Law students brought home the 2019 Lefkowitz National Trademark Law Moot Court Competition championship, marking LSU Law's fifth national championship in two years.
AT LSU,
CHAMPIONSHIPS
AREN’T JUST WON
ON THE FIELD.

Participate in our Moot Court teams and you better bring your A+ game. LSU Law has one of the largest law student advocacy skills training programs in the country. With over 10 titles in 10 years, LSU Law’s Trial Advocacy and Appellate Advocacy programs are the teams to beat. More than 150 students participate annually, and 30 traveling advocacy teams compete against other top law schools at tournaments across the country every year.

Further your persuasive skills with a little healthy competition. LSU Law also offers a series of workshops, boot camps, and professional skills courses to push your interests into an expertise. Debate down to the very last detail, and you can bring the next championship home to Baton Rouge.

GREAT MINDS THINK ALIKE,
BUT FLOURISH WITH VARIETY.

Aside from all the healthy competition inside the courtroom, there’s plenty to do outside of it. There are more than 40 student organizations for whatever legal practice you like:

With warm weather and even warmer hospitality, Louisiana is a diverse community cooked up from a gumbo pot of cultures. Enjoy life outside the classroom on the east bank of the Mississippi, served up with a side of jambalaya.

Baton Rouge is home to over 800,000 people who enjoy a vibrant metro area of art, music, culture, political, environmental, recreational, and festive social scenes. As Louisiana’s capital, opportunities in the state’s executive, judicial, and administrative branches are a stone’s throw away, allowing you to get the experience you need or the career you want right after graduation.

Study Comparative Law in a place that’s incomparable. Get a Juris with jazz. Pass the bar with beignets. Visit Crawfish on the Geaux on the way to court. Practice in a city that has it all, and you’ll be an enriched expert in life come commencement.
LSU is one campus that fits all, and LSU Law students are very much a part of it. As the flagship institution of Louisiana, LSU is a renowned university on the forefront of academic achievements and groundbreaking research. Walk to class shaded by centuries-old oak trees and magnolias. Take a break by one of the two lakes on campus. And stop by the Dairy Store on the way to get a double scoop of our homemade Tiger Bite ice cream. The blueberry and vanilla swirl will keep you coming back for more. You’ll be cheering and screaming for the Tigers in no time. This is a place you will always call home.

→ 30,000 students from all 50 states and more than 100 countries
→ 450+ student organizations
→ 8 galleries and museums
→ 4 theaters
→ 2 lakes
→ 1 live tiger mascot on campus (Mike VII)
→ And a gumbo pot of cultures
MAKE A CASE THAT’S HARD TO IGNORE.

To get in on this top-of-the-line education, you will need to beat out some of the competition right out of the gates. But you’ve got this. If you hold a baccalaureate from an accredited college or university and have taken the Law School Admission Test (LSAT) in the past five years, you can become a part of our exceptional community of legal scholars.

We also pride ourselves on taking the holistic approach to accepting students. High LSAT scores and GPAs are important, but we were made from a culture of broadly diversified students and scholars, and we keep to that standard every bit as much as academic excellence.

So bring us more than test scores. Bring us your passion and aptitude for law. What will you bring to LSU Law that no one else can? And how can we get you where you want to go? We want to hear your background, talents, experiences, and perspectives. Set yourself apart from the rest, and get that acceptance letter you’ve been waiting for.

HIGH VALUE. HIGHER SUCCESS.

We work to keep tuition low and the value of your degree as high as possible.

We’ve been recognized as offering one of the best-value legal educations in the country. Approximately one-third of LSU law students receive some form of scholarship assistance. LSU offers merit-based and endowed scholarships with awards all the way up to full tuition paid. Admitted first-year students are automatically considered for assistance, as well as rising second- and third-year law students who are making significant academic progress.

APPLY FOR FAFSA.

Students are also able to apply for federally funded need-based loans. To do so, you should complete the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) as soon as you have decided to apply to law school.
APPLICATION FOR ADMISSION

Applications should be on file no later than June 15.

APPLICATION FEE

A nonrefundable application fee of $50 must accompany the application.

PERSONAL STATEMENT

Students are required to write a personal statement that provides an opportunity for you to give LSU Law Center your education, back story, and legal goals.

RESUME

Applicants are required to submit a resume along with the application.

LSAT

All applicants must take the Law School Admissions Test (LSAT). The test is administered four times per year at testing centers near you. LSAT scores more than five years old will not be considered in the admissions process.

CREDENTIAL ASSEMBLY SERVICE

The Law Center requires its applicants to subscribe to the Credential Assembly Service (CAS). The Office of Admissions will request this report, which includes LSAT scores, a writing sample, copies of all academic transcripts, and a summary of all undergraduate grades.

VISIT THE CAS WEBSITE

Learn more at www.lsac.org/applying-law-school

TRANSCRIPTS

Admitted applicants are required to arrange for the submission of official transcripts of all undergraduate and graduate work directly from all institutions to the Office of Admissions no later than July 1.

LETTERS OF RECOMMENDATION

Student’s letters must be submitted through the Credential Assembly Service (CAS) of LSAC. Letters of recommendation should be written by teachers, employers, or others who have a significant personal knowledge of the applicant’s academic ability and aptitude for the study of law.
The Paul M. Hebert Law Center is committed to providing equal opportunity for all qualified persons in admission to, participation in, or employment in the programs and activities which the Law Center operates without regard to race, creed, color, marital status, sexual orientation, gender identity, gender expression, religion, sex, national origin, age, mental or physical disability, or veteran’s status.
